COMPROMISE URGED BY COMINGS TO AVERT DEFEAT.

INTERIM OPPOSED

Severson Measure Will Have First Chance if Blaine Proposal Is Beaten.

Madison.—The tax muddle that has developed in the legislature occasioned a number of moves among political leaders here over the weekend, in an effort to map out a course of procedure that will lead to enactment of some tax measure before the present session adjourns.

Governor Blaine's definite stand against an interim committee investigation of the revenue problem is accepted as the cause of the new impasse in the legislature. The governor's position is based on the fact that the legislature has sufficient information upon which to enact a new income tax law.

1—Phil La Follette, son of Senator La Follette, is authoritatively reported to have been enlisted to organize a conference of progressive republican leaders for next Saturday to back Governor Blaine's tax bill.

2—Lieut. Gov. George C. Comings, president of the senate, of the opinion that the governor's bill cannot muster enough votes to get through the upper house, has written Governor Blaine asking that he call a conference of legislative leaders and state officials to draft a new compromise measure that can be pushed through the present legislature.

DEATH IN MOONSHINE STATE CHEMIST SAYS

Madison.—Advice to the people of Wisconsin to "leave moonshine whiskey alone if they have any regard for their health and welfare" is given in a statement issued today by the prohibition department. H. J. Lampert, the department chemist, prepared the statement occasioned by the increased use of illicit liquor in the state.

"This whiskey is not only a laboring under the impression that moonshine is not harmful and poisonous, at least, not any more so than bonded whiskey which has been under government supervision and control," Mr. Lampert said.

"The state prohibition department desires the public to know the character of this poisonous drink. A warning might be given regarding to conditions under which some of this moonshine is made, generally, the law-breaker has the moonshine hidden, but it is potentially impure to keep the character of the moonshine under cover, it is necessary to have it warm before it will work."

"However, there have been innumerable instances where moonshine has been found in the ground, under a stump, in pig sty, dug-outs and in many equally dirty, filthy and unsanitary surroundings. These conditions absolutely uncontrolled and under very unsanitary surroundings are especially favorable to wild fermentation, leading to the formation of organic acids, acetone and butyl alcohol known to be deadly poisons."

"Is it any wonder that many other compounds and by-products are formed during the fermentation at the same time that ethyl alcohol is being formed? After the completion of the fermentation, the mash is transferred to the still. Practically all of these contrivances or stills are dirty and unsanitary. No care is taken to regulate the temperature, when fermenting and distilling, and quite naturally the by-products and everything fermented and volatile comes over into the distillate, mixing with the alcohol and water, the main constituents of whiskey."

"At high temperatures, the acid in the mash acts on the copper of the still, forming verdigris, which is a substance of copper and is very poisonous. The most practical distiller cannot make able whiskey in small amounts. It is impossible."

"One must remember that the primary object of the moonshiner is to make and sell his illicit liquor in the shortest possible time, having absolutely no regard for the quality of his product. His desire is quantity. He is neither interested in the poisonous concoctions or the health and welfare of the individual. If the consumer could only know how most of this moonshine is made, he would never touch a drop of the 'milk poison.'"

"New whiskey is raw, crude, harsh in taste and flavor and distinctly unpalatable. The moonshine is only more so, being also nauseating and deleterious. The best of it is impure and dangerous. The new whiskey is somewhat similar to the moonshine in its colorlessness, has somewhat the same characteristic odor and flavor, but there are many more impurities and by-products in the moonshine."

"The chemist says that the moonshine is a deadly poison. It is a warning to the public to leave moonshine whiskey alone if they have any regard for their health and welfare."

NEGRO IS LYNCHED BY MISSOURI MOB IN COLLEGE TOWN

JAIL DOORS HAMMERED DOWN AND VICTIM SEIZED.

PLEAS ARE VAIN

Attempted Attack on Child Infuriates Citizens; Deny Students Involved.

Columbia, Mo.—Police officers Monday were endeavoring to identify members of a mob who stormed the jail here, removed a negro and hanged him to a railroad bridge Sunday.

A grand jury investigation has been premised by Ruby M. Hulien, prosecuting attorney of Boone county.

The negro was accused of attempting to attack the 14 year old daughter of Dr. H. F. Altmeyer, head of the University of Missouri here.

Reports that university students took part in the lynching were denied by witnesses and by Dr. Theodore Loh, acting president of the university.

"We know who the leaders of the mob were," Hulien said Monday. At least one of them was not a citizen.

Factions Have Tied Legislative Hands Until Late in June

By STEPHEN BOLLES

Madison.—Another week of legislation at Madison has only emphasized the division on political lines in both the assembly and the senate. The fortunes of the governor are indissolubly mixed with the making of laws. It has apparently been decided that the governor shall be eliminated from progressive politics and a small majority in the assembly has aligned itself against almost any measure which comes from the executive offices. For that reason the governor's tax bill will never reach the dignity of a statute law.

It had been hoped that there would be an interim committee study of the question of legislation but the governor has put his foot down upon that, possibly because it emanated from the more conservative side of the legislature. There might be more cause for anguish were it not that the lack of any legislation is of greater consequence than the passage of a team of bills.

When his father moved to Dane county, near Deerfield, the young farm work was done by Knute, with schooling interspersed. In 1881 he enlisted in the Fourth Wisconsin infantry recruited from Dane, Jefferson, Walworth, Racine and neighboring counties. At Port Hudson, La., in the Red River campaign under General Banks, he was severely wounded. When released, he returned to Dane county and finished school, studied law, was admitted to the bar in 1887 and in 1888 was elected to the assembly from Dane county. He served there until 1899, when he removed to Minnesota.

Older residents of Deerfield and around Albion remember the heavy set, strong, active Norwegian farmer who was determined to get an education. In Minnesota he represented his state in congress after several terms in the legislature, was then elected governor, and in 1895 became United States Senator, where he has remained.

Speculation as to his successor already is on in St. Paul. Governor Preus says he will not be a candidate.

Following the order to weigh-up all unsold tobacco contracted for in the northern Wisconsin Tobacco Growers' pool, a start was made Monday in sizing crops and in the pool warehouse in Janesville. There were 15 sorters at work and this force will be increased, according to Eber Arthur, manager of the Rock county district.

Considerable tobacco will be moved in Rock county this week. Pool growers from the Rock county district and growers will receive their advance payment on unsold crops to be delivered to the Janesville warehouse. An effort is being made by the pool to clean up all the tobacco under contract, either by a public sale or by putting it across the sizing table.

The pool meeting to be held Thursday night, May 3, is expected to attract growers from all parts of the county. The meeting will be held in the Somerville warehouse, formerly the Cornville warehouse, on West Milwaukee street, Janesville.

SENATOR NELSON, MINNESOTA, DEAD; WAS BADGER BOY

His early life, his entrance into the war as a soldier of the Fourth Wisconsin infantry, a regiment which afterward became the Fourth Wisconsin cavalry, his education and his beginning in politics, made Senator Knute Nelson almost as much a Wisconsin man as he was from Minnesota.

He died on a railroad train between Eau Claire and Harrisburg, Saturday night, and his body arrived in Chicago Monday morning. He will be buried at his home town, Alexandria, Minn., with simple ceremonies, following the request of Governor J. A. Preus from St. Paul to Chicago to accompany the body home.

Senator Knute Nelson was educated at Albion academy. One will see the brick structure, now unused, on the right as one arrives near the village of Albion, between Edgerton and Stoutsville. There he went to school after the Civil war. He was born in Norway in 1843 and came to America when six years old. He remained in Chicago until 1880, when his father moved to Dane county, near Deerfield. The young farm work was done by Knute, with schooling interspersed. In 1881 he enlisted in the Fourth Wisconsin infantry recruited from Dane, Jefferson, Walworth, Racine and neighboring counties. NEGRO IS LYNCHED BY MISSOURI MOB IN COLLEGE TOWN of Columbia. The state has evidence enough to identify the man who furnished the rope and the man who threw the negro off the bridge.

Doors Are Smashed

The mob entered the jail by breaking down doors with sledge hammers. An acetylene torch was used to remove the door from the negro's cell. Sheriff Fred Brown said he had no real fear that the prisoner would be lynched because he thought this door was impassable. It took almost an hour to burn through the door, he said.

When the sheriff's pleadings with the mob failed, he sent for Dr. Almstedt, thinking the voice of the father of the girl might cause the lynchers to give up their purpose. By the time the professor arrived, the negro had been removed from the jail and the crowd had started for the bridge.

Overtaking the mob, Dr. Almstedt appealed to its members to let the law take its course, but he was howled down.

At the bridge they found the rope too short and sent for another. During this time, the negro declared his innocence.

Pushed Off Bridge
A longer rope was tied about the negro's neck and he was pushed off the bridge. The crowd almost instantly, the corner said.

"I wanted to see the guilty man punished but not by mob violence," said Dr. Almstedt.

"I have no doubt that he was," Dr. Almstedt replied. "He was identified positively by my daughter."

Last Friday afternoon the girl, Regina Almstedt, was walking alone near the bridge where the hanging took place, when a negro attempted to attack her but was frightened away by an approaching handcar.

The negro, James Scott, was a janitor at the university.

TANKS TO GIVE FAREWELL DANCE

The last dance in the old armory at Corn Exchange will be held Monday night, when the Tank corps gives a farewell party. Nelson's orchestra has been procured. The least of the corps' exploits is planning to take over the entire building.

SURVEY GROUNDS AT SCHOOL FOR GRADING
Survival of the fittest in the new high school is being made by the city engineering department in preparation for grading, bids on which have been called for by the board of education. It is hoped that the grounds are now being cleared up preparatory to this work and the laying of sidewalks. Architect H. J. Van Ryn, Milwaukee, looked over the work Friday.

BAND PLAYS WELL IN SUNDAY CONCERT

Well Balanced Program Given
School.

Believed to be largely due to a misunderstanding about the starting time, 4 p. m., a rather small audience enjoyed the second community concert at the high school Sunday afternoon, when the Bower City band played. The concert, however, proved to be a fine one and several encores were demanded.

The band played as well as it has been heard to play in the last few years, and a well balanced program relieved any monotony that might be caused by an hour and a half of band music.

Marches, fantasias, waltzes, overtures and special selections were all well received. Some of the shorter marches were played with snap and vim, while the overtures and selections, such as "The Golden Dragon" and the three-part selection, "Morning Noon and Night in Vienna," were played with a precision that would credit a metropolitan musical organization. Some of the effects using only the higher-toned instruments, then crashing in with the basses, were well brought out, and showed the leadership that is so closely followed under the band supervision and direction of Burr W. Tolles.

U. S. ARMY MAY BE USED WITH NAVY IN WAR ON BOOZE

utilized to enforce civil and criminal laws. The lawyers have found plenty of precedents with respect to the army, as for instance the sending of troops to quell the famous liquor rebellion in Pennsylvania in the early days of the American republic, when the first revenue laws were passed and there was difficulty in collecting taxes.

The military forces have also been used to enforce statutes relating to restraint of interstate commerce, as for instance in the shopmen's railway strike a year ago. Every governor has the right to call upon the federal government at any time to furnish troops to uphold state government and quell disturbances.

Case of Rebellion

But the waters within the three-mile limit do not belong to any particular state and the question is whether a national emergency exists which permits the navy to be diverted from its task of protecting the nation against foreign invasion into enforcement of domestic laws. Broadly speaking, the navy can be used in an emergency to put down civil war and has been used in that connection so that if the emergency were great enough there would be no doubt of the power of executive to order the navy into action. Similarly if any huge plot to break down the tariff wall and smuggle goods into America were under way, the navy could be used to put down what would be interpreted as rebellion against the authority of the federal government.

Up to President.

The general impression is that the lawyers will find there is ample precedent and will leave the question of whether it is wise to employ the navy in prohibition enforcement entirely to the executive himself to decide. It will then become largely a matter of policy. Does the president wish to establish a precedent with respect to prohibition enforcement which may compel him some day with equal logic to order out the army if any state of the union fails to enforce the 18th amendment?

The problem is full of political dangers whichever way it is solved but the best conjecture at the moment is that the department of justice will render the necessary legal opinion and the American navy before long will be engaged in prohibition enforcement.

COUNTY STARTS 1923 ROAD WORK

200 Feet of Concrete Poured on Janesville-Evanston Highway.

Rock county highway department started 1923 concrete highway construction activities, Saturday afternoon, when 200 feet of the Evansville road, Route 10 was poured. The pouring follows several weeks' work getting the machinery, track and equipment in place.

Work was started at a point two and a quarter miles south of the gravel pit near Evansville and will be continued toward Janesville to connect up with the stretch laid last year which extends to Loxden, a distance of two and three-quarter miles. County Highway Commissioner Charles B. Moore said Monday that with the crew having 600 feet a day, the stretch should be completed within a month.

40 Men on Job
Forty men are on the job. Seven thousand barrels of cement, enough to build two and a third miles of 18-foot concrete highway is on hand, being stored in a big shed near the pit. Mr. Moore has orders for more cement which will be unloaded at Port Jervis station, a mile from the gravel pit.

Cement concerns and road builders are taking steps to forestall a repetition of the cement shortage which called a temporary halt to work last season and everyone is being urged to take as much cement now as possible.

Gravel Work Begins
Contractors for the grading and gravel work, the contracts for which were awarded last week ago, are getting ready to start work within a few days. W. J. Lathers Jr., is completing the grading of the 3,000 feet near the city limits of Edgerton, which he was unable to finish last year. He will be through Tuesday or Wednesday and will then concentrate his force on the Janesville-Shopshire road job.

Pool Halls Get Orders on Using Tables Overtime

"The people spoke very decisively at the last election against just that sort of thing," Judge R. L. Maxwell said, when he issued an order that he was assigned for running Mace & Tatman's Black Cat pool hall after hours. "I'll fine you $6 and costs and be sure you don't do it again."

Mr. Maxwell said he was told he had given the pool halls the right to run their tables until 11:30 Saturday night but that the Black Cat tables were still in use at 11:40 last Saturday night.

"I warned him to close up when I went in there at that time," said the chief, "but when I went back 15 minutes later one table was still in use."

"If they are given a half hour longer to run, Saturdays, they'll open up to take advantage of us and run all night long," he said. "It's 11 o'clock for all of them every night in the week," Chief Newman declared.

Mr. Tatman told the court his lease on the Black Cat expired last month when he had his partner with him to Monroe. They will continue to run the Owl pool hall here.

A chilly reception didn't cool one off on a hot day.

EMERSON HOUGH IS DEAD IN EVANSTON

Well Known Author Succumbs
in Hospital After Operation.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Chicago.—Emerson Hough, author, died in a hospital in Evanston Monday.

Mr. Hough was 66 years old and was taken to the hospital last Thursday suffering from an intestinal obstruction. An operation was performed on Saturday.

Heart and respiratory complications caused death.

Mr. Hough, who was a devotee and disciple of outdoor life, had written many western stories, his most recent book "The Covered Wagon," having recently been produced in motion pictures. In the winter of 1895, donning skis he traveled over Yellowstone National park and his activity during this trip was credited with inspiring the act of congress protecting buffalo herds.

Mr. Hough explored many of the wildest and most out of the way corners of the southern territory and during his earlier years gathered much of the material for his later books of travel, adventure and romance. Many of his novels were of the historical romance type, involving the history of the west with its pioneer difficulties, gold, land, Indians, wars and all that entered into the years of struggle and eventual success.

The author was born in Newton, Jan. 28, 1857. He graduated from the University of Iowa in 1880. Soon afterward he began his travels in response to his love for the outdoor life and the beauties of nature.

Mr. Hough's "The Singing Moose Story," published in 1895, and "The Story of the Cowboy" in 1897, attracted wide attention.

In 1897, he married Charlotte A. Chesebrough of Chicago, who survives him.

Among his more well known and famous stories were "Fifty-four Forty, or Fight," published in 1893; and "The Mississippi," published in 1902. There were many others, among them "The Law of the Land," "The Way to the West," "The Way of a Man" and the "Young Alaskans."

At a trial the jury is sometimes sorely tried.

Build a new and larger and better Y. M. C. A. building to care for the constantly increasing need by reason of the influx of new residents.

Since the First President.

One hundred and thirty-four years ago today George Washington was inaugurated president of the United States at New York. He was late in getting to the capital of the nation owing to the state of the roads and the condition of the country generally as it was emerging from the wreck and ruin of the revolution.

Washington became the chief executive of a new and different government than the world had ever known before. The protest of a thousand years of peoples seeking for the right of individual expression in ownership of property, in thought and action, in desire to have freedom in worship at church or family shrine, in right of property and certain personal rights, by man in holding as his own the fruits of his initiative, had at last found expression in a fundamental law arranged in orderly manner. Here was a government as free from the tyrannies of autocracy as it was a guarantee of freedom from the tyranny of democracy. George Washington became therefore the living expression of Americanism. Just as the decalogue forms the basis for a world jurisprudence so the constitution forms the basis for protection of mankind in America from the encroachments of statutory inhibitions against individual rights. So we entered upon a career where law ruled and mob violence or usake of a single power was no longer master of human destiny.

Up to this time for many thousand years we had failed to develop human possibilities or natural resources. It was left for humanity, freed from shackles of autocracy, to work out those problems which were to revolutionize a world of mechanical life just as man had revolutionized his political and religious life. And we are still working out that marvelous destiny in 1923, 134 years later.

Senator Knute Nelson.

While it may be that Minnesota claims Senator Knute Nelson, it is also true that Wisconsin had prior claim. Here he was raised near Deerfield, and from here he went to war serving with fidelity in the Fourth Wisconsin regiment. Taken prisoner in 1862 he had experiences that served him in good stead in after years. Admitted to the bar in Dane county, Wisconsin, he became a member of the assembly of this state way back in 1868, serving a term. Minnesota became his home after that and that young commonwealth was quick to see the genuine statesmanship in the young Norwegian who had settled among the people of the newer state. He served three terms in congress and afterward became governor, then United States senator and has been a member of the senate continuously since 1895.

Minnesota and Knute Nelson have been synonymous. Her great Scandinavian population had every reason to be pleased with the representative of that race who so ably represented Minnesota. Unswayed by storm of radicalism, unswayed by mere political expediency, boldly defiant of the leadership of the party at times in his state, he stood as a solid rock for the highest ideals of Americanism and impregnable in his fortified loyalty to the American republic.

His counsel and his support will be missed in Minnesota where radicalism won over every other consideration last fall and will precipitate a political battle that will stir the state to greater depths even than the contest of 1922.

A SUCCESSFUL JUNIOR CHURCH

By FREDERICK J. HANKIN

Washington—Calvary Baptist church of this city has been so crowded since President Harding's attendance there, that a junior church had to be established for the children of the congregation.

The "president's church" of each administration is always packed to the doors on Sunday morning by visitors hoping to catch a glimpse of the chief executive. Seating the congregation became a serious problem, and all sorts of devices from curbs of admission and roped off sections for the church members to extra chairs and seats in the hall adjoining the auditorium are resorted to in the effort to meet the situation. This is the first time, however, that the children have been separated and organized into a church of their own. The president's church has had its junior church for eighteen months now, and it is a flourishing organization of more than 200 members.

This is not a brand new idea. There are a number of such churches in different cities. But it is a very modern idea, one that is becoming increasingly popular, and that is in consequence attracting attention.

Just how modern the theory really is can be seen if you compare the children's church not only with church worship of 300 years ago but also with an ordinary adult church of today. Accounts of Puritan children attending services in old New England tell of arduous, two-hour long, hard benches too high to permit the children's short legs to reach the ground, a church etiquette which demanded a stiff attitude of attention—no slumping or leaning against your neighbor. All these conditions seem remote and medieval to us today, and yet there is a still wider gap between the modern church and the junior church so far as the child is concerned.

The adult church is more comfortable now, and the sermons are shorter and on the whole simpler. But the child has no active part in the work of the organization, while in the junior church children hold all of the offices except that of preacher. An ordained minister preaches and takes charge of affairs as in any church, though in at least one children's church boy speakers often fill the pulpit.

In the president's church last Sunday morning about 200 boys and girls, mostly between nine and fifteen years of age, filled the junior church auditorium. A basket of Easter lilies decorated the desk, and an orchestra of two little girl violinists and a pianist shared the platform with the minister. An adult preceptor led the singing of the hymns.

The scripture lesson, "for a change," the minister explained, was to consist of Bible verses chosen by any of the boys and girls in the audience. The collection was taken by efficient boy ushers, while the orchestra rendered a classic melody. The sermon, of course, was prepared for the audience and was presented in simple language and attractive form.

This is perhaps a typical junior church program. It shows how the service is adapted to interest the children. But it does not show the work that goes on outside. All of the committees in charge of flowers, social affairs, athletics, music, charities, and finance are made up of boys and girls. Boys hold the offices of deacon, trustee, clerk, and treasurer. The girls visit the sick of the junior congregation. The vested choir, now in process of formation, is to be made up of both boys and girls.

The Rev. A. F. Anderson, assistant minister of the Calvary Baptist church and head of its junior church, explains that while the church atmosphere is always preserved, formality is not so strictly observed as in the usual service. The minister may pause in his sermon to ask his congregation if they have ever heard of David Farragut before telling an incident about him, and the preceptor may praise the singing of a hymn or suggest that "the boys seem to be outdoing the girls this morning."

Once in a while the minister varies the program by giving a stereotyped talk instead of a sermon, and once a month there is a patriotic service in which the Boy Scouts take part.

The real advantages of the junior church, Dr. Anderson explains, are twofold. In the first place the services are planned for the boys and girls and they can always understand the sermon. In the second place the young officers and committee members are getting training for church work. The boys who have been a deacon in the junior church and the girls who have taken charge of the flowers will not be at a loss if they are asked to assume responsibilities in the adult church later. Several of the older members of Dr. Anderson's junior church have announced a desire to become medical missionaries, and they are planning their school courses with this end in view.

The chief difficulty of a junior church is the usual difficulty of any organization composed of boys and girls of different ages. The nine-year-olds are proud to join with the older members, but each older group is apt to feel that anything suitable for younger children is too simple for it. To interest an audience of this sort without getting beyond the understanding of the youngest members, or without boring the adolescents is a serious proposition for any preacher. That Dr. Anderson manages to maintain this delicate balance successfully is indicated by the fact that a good many boys and girls who have outgrown the junior church age continue to take an interest in the affairs of the organization.

The junior church is only one of the rather unusual features of the president's church. This church is one of the largest in Washington. It has a membership of about 3,000 and a Sunday school of 4,500. One of its Sunday school classes boasts an enrollment of nearly 1,000 young women, mostly government employees.

Every Sunday the church conducts Chinese church services, which are attended by 200 Orientals, and a service for deaf mutes, at which the sermon is preached by a deaf mute. Babies are taken care of during services in a nursery, and young children are told stories in another group. Yet with all this segregation any one has to arise early of a Sunday morning if he is possessed of the desire to attend worship in the company of the president.

ing sent seven to death in a morning session of her court, would railroad the "conspirators" to death as traitors and have the applause of at least four clergymen of New York city. But in Washington, the Filipino commission for independence does that very thing and is unopposed. Again let it be said that we have no political prisoners in America or otherwise these Filipinos would be jailed or shot.

Fourteen canes have been presented to the Duke of York for wedding presents. Nothing is said about the rolling pins for the bride. Neither has anyone made her a present of an aluminum kitchen set.

That cashier who took 25 years to embezzle $800,000 was as slow as the bank examiners in finding out about it.

Several people we did not know are introduced to the public generally by being killed in auto accidents over Sunday.

It takes almost as much to buy the stamps to send a million marks to America from Germany as the money is worth in Germany. Save the stamps.

One of the objections to the International Court is that they might send prisoners to Leavenworth.

JUST FOLKS

ONCE UPON A TIME.
Once upon a time, the world was everywhere And everything I looked upon was new and wondrous fair.
The world was trimmed with buttercups and daisies, and the breeze Sent the fleecy ships above me fairly dancing on the breeze;
And I possessed an orchard with full forty trees to climb.
And I wore a little sailor suit, once upon a time.
Once upon a time, though you'd never guess it now,
I had a dimple in my chin and curls upon my brow,
And fairies used to play with me and show me where they hid
And I could share in all their games and everything they did;
I knew the pictures in the books and every nursery rhyme,
I used to ride a rocking horse, once upon a time.
Once upon a time I had a dog to follow me
And we'd run off together just as happy as could be.
I used to know the summer birds and where their nests were made
And I could handle frogs and snakes and never was afraid;
I was as rich as any king with just a shiny dime,
And I possessed a ball and bat, once upon a time.
Once upon a time—oh dear, how far away it seems!
I played the very game you play and dreamed your lovely dreams,
But now I look so old to you, who are so very small,
That you can't quite believe that I was ever young at all;
Yet you shall learn, I have learned, when you have passed the prime
How very rich and glad you were, once upon a time.

Who's Who Today

ALBERT RESE.
Albert Rese, for twelve years a life-guard on the Long Beach, N. Y., patrol, received a Congressional Medal for life-saving recently. Rese holds a record of 732 rescues, 700 of which were made at Long Beach and the others in all parts of the world. The medal comes to him for "courage displayed in rescuing a man June 18, 1922."

Rese's record includes a series of thirty-eight rescues in one day and the saving of thirty lives on Sept. 7, 1914, by forming a life line, along which exhausted bathers were passed to safety. His first rescue took place in the harbor of Copenhagen when he was twelve years old. Seven years before he had been taught to swim by his father from the deck of a sailboat in the same harbor.

The young Dane left home at the age of 14 as a companion of his uncle, who was captain of a passenger ship. During voyages extending over a period of four years he spent some time in all of the European countries, bordering upon the sea, and in Egypt, Japan and China. He won several swimming contests as a youngster before employment as a life-guard barred him from competition.

Rese is working in the Business Department of the New York City Police Department. He is tall and muscular, with clear blue eyes and bronzed skin.

OPINIONS OF OTHERS

The Loop Hole.
There is one feature of the Unemployment Insurance bill which it would pay Wisconsin labor to ponder seriously.
This is the provision to make the benefits under the proposed law apply only to workers who have resided in the state for a period of twenty-three weeks.
This is bound to operate to the disadvantage of Wisconsin labor.
Under the law an employer who hires Wisconsin labor will be liable for unemployment insurance at the rate of a dollar a day for thirty-three weeks for every employee whom he cuts off the payroll.
But he can bring in labor from another state and fire them at the end of five and one half months without being liable for unemployment insurance at all, since the law provides that an employee must reside in the state for twenty-three weeks to qualify for benefits under the law.
That provision was inserted, of course, to prevent hordes of job-seekers in times of depression from rushing into this state, which offered unemployment insurance, thus competing with native labor to its disadvantage.
But this very provision offers a loop-hole for the employer who wishes to evade the law and there will be plenty of them who will take advantage of it.
This will be particularly true in boom times when employers want to add a number of men to the payroll for a short time. They can be expected to get these extra men from out of the state.
In Superior this will tend to make employers favor Duluth workmen rather than Superior workmen, since on every Superior workman the employer will be liable up to $30 in unemployment insurance and on Duluth workmen he will be liable for nothing.
All of which illustrates exactly what The Telegram has been maintaining in regard to unemployment insurance. It may be desirable as a national remedy applied to the whole country, but it is neither practical, desirable, nor safe for a single state, from either the standpoint of industry or labor.—Superior Telegram.

Personal Health Service

POLITENESS AND HEALTH
QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

Neuritis.
I mailed you a stamp some time ago and asked what you thought would be good for my neuritis and haven't heard anything from it yet. * * * (A. B. L.)
Answer.—I haven't thought of anything good for it. I do not diagnose neuritis as a physician. I see it, of course, neuritis is very common now; nearly everybody that believes in "neuritis" and such things takes a whirl at neuritis as the imaginary explanation of some ache or pain or weakness. Still, I can't think of anything good for it, unless it is that person who imagine they have neuritis should consult a physician. I see whether he can find out what ails them. I'm not suggesting this to you, however. You failed to enclose a stamped and addressed envelope. I am merely trying to hint that nine times out of 10, "neuritis" isn't neuritis at all. It is really caused by some other thing, as though it were just a kind of fashionable way of having "rheumatism" or "arthritis." It was the latest term for any ache, pain or lameness. To ask a physician "What ails me?" is really just as justifiable as sensible as it would be to ask "What is good for fracture?"

Home Pharmacy.
I have mailed you as I did in our family for constipation a recipe consisting of about equal quantities of dates, prunes and figs, and the family together with about half the quantity of powdered senna, and a little of the "Rheumatism" or "Arthritis" mixture. Take a portion the size of a hickory nut as needed. The mixture keeps indefinitely in the refrigerator. Use it regularly or habitually, will the senna in this mixture do harm? (H. C. K.)
Answer.—No, it will do no harm. It is any other cathartic so good. But why dependent upon drugs? Did nature make a mistake in the construction of your family or did the family make a mistake in ignoring nature? Almost invariably the physical habit is in the mind. (1) Ignoring nature, (2) ignoring or neglecting or postponing answering the call of nature, (3) excluding nature from the household, (4) taking a ready resort to artificial laxatives.

Q. What are the highest and lowest temperatures recorded in the United States?
A. The highest temperature ever observed in the United States is 134 degrees F., which was recorded in Greenland, one of the interior valleys of southern California, July 10, 1913. The lowest temperature ever observed in the United States is 65 degrees below zero. This occurred at Fort Keogh, near Miles City, Mont., in January, 1888.

Q. What is the area of protection of a lightning rod?
A. There is no way of determining the area of protection of a lightning rod. In modern practice the rod is regarded as protecting only the object upon which it is placed.

Q. Has there ever been any difference in the regulation army "about face" as executed by officers and executed by men?
A. The war department says that up to 1911 the enlisted man did "about face" by turning on the right heel and left toe and bringing his left heel to his right heel after turning about. Now, officers, at the drill always done, and enlisted men, since 1911, do "about face" in the same manner. This is by placing the right foot on the left foot, and turning on the heel of the left foot and turning on right toe and left heel.

Q. What was the difference between the Russian and the American solar system?
A. The naval observatory says the Ptolemaic system, was established about 140 A. D. and won general acceptance for 14 or 15 centuries. According to it, the fixed stars move in simple circles or cycles; whereas, the planets move around the circumference of a circle called the "ecliptic" while the center of this circle, sometimes called the "eccentric planet," itself moves on the circumference of another and larger circle called the "orbit."

Q. Do flying fish have wings?
A. The so-called flying fish have no wings, but do have large fins. They fly a distance of from a few rods to more than an eighth of a mile, rarely rising more than three or four feet.

Q. How many members are there in the Moravian Trombone choir?
A. The Bethlehem Moravian choir has 24 members and the instruments used are the soprano, alto, tenor and bass slide trombone.

HOROSCOPE

MONDAY, APRIL 30, 1923
The Sun and Uranus in evil aspect today are held to be exceedingly threatening by astrologers.
It is exceedingly unfavorable for all who wish to begin the week by any initiative that makes necessary consultation with men in high place, for they will be unresponsive and even hostile. If the Sun is adverse, the seeds declare.
The rule is exceedingly threatening to the fame and the popularity of persons who hold public office. From the time of the election of the President, the seeds declare.
Criticism of all who wield power may be given.
Envy, jealousy and malice will mark many persons in their attitude toward those more fortunate than themselves, when Uranus is adverse.
The total eclipse of the sun in September is read as presaging famine, pestilence and sedition for Europe. The line of control eclipse, runs through Mexico and Central America, and the two countries may be badly affected.
Earthquakes are to be more numerous than they have been for many years. It is necessary to be on guard.
Brazil may experience an unusual number of disasters, for Mars on the lower meridian and the Moon and Uranus culminate in that country.
Warnings given again that diet should be the concern of all who wish to keep in good condition during the coming summer.
Persons whose birthdate it is may have a very active year, with some anxieties. Travel and change should be postponed.
Children born on this day may have many vicissitudes in life. These subjects of Taurus may have very strong personalities that are difficult to mold, but they are likely to be very talented. Success can be readily attained by those who focus their ambitions on a special goal.

CO. SUPT. ANTISDEL URGES COOPERATION

County Supt. O. D. Antisdel told students of the Rock county normal school in an address recently that small things in the life of a teacher affect the pupils in many ways that are not realized. Public Approval

THE Standard Oil Company (Indiana) stands before the public squarely on its merits as an organization of service.

In directing the affairs of this Company, the management is animated by ideals of justice, fairness and equity to employee, consumer, competitor, stockholder and the general public.

Because it insists that the rights of all should be safeguarded, the Company has prospered and has taken its place as a leader in an essential industry.

To achieve commercial success, profits are necessary. Profits can come only through liberal patronage of the buying public.

This public will not patronize an organization whose methods are unfair or unjust. Continued prosperity comes only to the Company which renders a superior service and sells honest merchandise at an honest price.

To every fair-minded observer it must be obvious that hundreds of thousands of people are patronizing the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) and are doing so because they have found by experience that the service rendered by this company is reliable and that the goods it sells are uniform and dependable, and that its prices are consistently fair.

Figures recently published by the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce show that one-third of the automobiles registered are concentrated in the ten states served by the Standard Oil Company (Indiana)—yet, the price of gasoline in this territory compares favorably with that in any similar section in the world.

This low scale of prices is attributed to the efficiency of the Standard Oil Company (Indiana).

By its ever increasing patronage the public places the stamp of its approval upon the efficiency of the Standard Oil Company (Indiana).

The acknowledged efficiency of this Company is due to the unflinching loyalty of its 27,000 employees to the high ideals of service which the management has inaugurated and insists upon maintaining; to the unequalled facilities which this Company has provided for carrying on the business.

The loyalty of the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) employee is based upon the knowledge that this Company recognizes the rights of the worker to steady employment at good wages; to a liberal annuity plan; to protection against accident; and to opportunity to invest in the Company's business on favorable terms.

Because of this efficiency, recognized and approved by the public, the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) is able to pay to the stockholders a fair return on the capital invested, and to build up a sufficient reserve to enable it to expand its business to keep pace with the public need.
